EDITORIAL

Zohran Mamdani and Indian women cricketers shine as beacons of hope and glory

If Russia succeeds in wrapping up its 'special military operations' in Ukraine while US President Donald Trump remains in office, this war can end all wars in Europe and Eurasia for a long time to come. The recent weeks are witnessing a phenomenal shift in the 'correlation of forces' in international politics attributable to the dynamic relationship between Russia's productive forces. Russia, which left socialism behind and crafted a toolbox attuned to geopolitics, is regaining a favourable balance of power vis-à-vis the West. In the current transitional era of revolutionary change and transformation in the global order, Russia's surge becomes immensely consequential to India, which is also on a capitalist path of development littered with formidable challenges to its rise.On Russia's National Unity Day on November 4, President Vladimir Putin held a ceremony at the Kremlin to present state decorations to the designers of the Burevestnik cruise missile and the Poseidon unmanned submersible, the country's newest futuristic weapon systems. The terrible beauty of these two weapons is that both are nuclear-powered and the West has neither any matching capability nor defence against them for the foreseeable future. The 9M730 Burevestnik is a low-flying, nuclearpowered, nuclear-armed cruise missile that Putin called "a unique weapon that no other country possesses", and would have a nearly unlimited range because of its onboard nuclear power. The missile's test lasted around 15 hours, travelling more than 14,000 km. The Norwegian government confirmed the test flight launched out of Novaya Zemlya, an archipelago off the northern coast of Russia.The Poseidon, named after the sea god in Greek mythology, is a nuclear-powered underwater drone—also with an unlimited range. Russian state media and officials claim that the super-torpedo is designed to trigger massive radioactive tsunamis capable of devastating coastal cities and rendering large areas uninhabitable for decades. In a State of the Union address in 2018 at the Russian parliament, Putin had stated that the Burevestnik and several other new strategic weapons were necessary to preserve strategic stability, citing the US's withdrawal from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty as destabilising. These weapons are game-changers in the global strategic balance. Alongside comes the cuttingedge Oreshnik, a surface-to-surface hypersonic ballistic missile designed to be launched from ground or sea that strikes targets at speed exceeding Mach 10. Oreshnik, which has been inducted into the armed forces, displayed its massive destructive power last November in a sensational 'target practice' without munitions in Ukraine.Some months ago, writing in Foreign Policy, Decker Eveleth, an American expert at CNA, a Washington-based non-profit research organisation, assessed that Oreshnik could potentially cripple Nato's operational readiness in a hypothetical war, giving Russia more nonnuclear options and theoretically lessening the need to use nuclear weapons early in a conflict. Such a scenario is of interest from an Indian perspective, as Tass has reported Russia may be willing to supply the Oreshnik to 'allied nations'. The Russian defence industry currently produces up to 25 Oreshnik missiles per month, which allows the Russian armed forces to field approximately 300 such systems annually.

Jeevan Pramaan Rejected Follow THESE Simple Steps To Fix Your Digital Life Certificate

New Delhi.(Agency)

Pensioners are required to submit their life certificate, known as Jeevan Pramaan by November 30 to keep their pension payments running smoothly. Jeevan Pramaan is a Digital Life Certificate that uses Aadhaar-based biometric verification. This makes the process simple, secure, and convenient for pensioners.Jeevan Pramaan is an Aadhaar-based, biometric digital service that helps pensioners confirm their "aliveness" without visiting their pension office in person. It is available to pensioners of the Central and State Governments, as well as other government bodies whose Pension Sanctioning Authority (PSA) is registered on the Jeevan Pramaan platform.What to do in case of rejection

Receiving a rejection SMS for your Jeevan Pramaan can be worrying but fixing it is easier than you think. The first thing you need to do is get in touch with your Pension Disbursing Agency (PDA) whether it's your bank or post office to understand why it was rejected. Once the issue is clear, you can simply update the correct details and re-authenticate your biometrics to generate a fresh Jeevan Pramaan ID. Pensioners can visit Jeevan Pramaan centres available at banks, post offices, and CSCs.
